Introduction

MediSave Care is a long-term care scheme that allows Singaporeans and PRs who are severely disabled to make monthly cash withdrawals from their own and their spouse's MediSave Accounts.

The withdrawals can be used for long-term care needs, such as hiring a helper, paying for care services, or daily expenses.

How to qualify

There are a few criteria your loved one will need to meet to qualify for MediSave Care.

Criteria	Description
Care recipient's nationality and age	He/ she must be a Singapore Citizen or PR aged 30 and above.
Care recipient's MediSave Account balance	He/ she must have a MediSave Account balance of at least $5,000. To check, log in to cpf.gov.sg with your Singpass If the care recipient is tapping on his/ her spouse's MediSave Account to top up the withdrawal amount, the spouse's MediSave Account balance must also have at least $5,000.
Care recipient's needs	He/ she must: - Require full assistance with at least three of the six activities of daily living. The six activities are:       - Undergo severe disability assessment.

Criteria	Description
	If he/ she is not staying in a nursing home ◦ The assessment must be done by an MOH-accredited severe disability assessor. ◦ Find out how to book an appointment to do the assessment. ◦ You will need to pay the assessment fee first. It will be reimbursed if he/ she is assessed to be severely disabled. Read about the cost here. If he/ she is a nursing home resident ◦ You can ask the nursing home to help submit a Resident's Assessment Form (RAF) instead. If he/ she lacks mental capacity ◦ Find out more about applying on behalf of someone who lacks capacity.

How the scheme works

If you qualify, you can withdraw up to $200 each month from MediSave, depending on the account balance at the point of withdrawal.

Notes:

- The withdrawal amount depends on the care recipient/ spouse's MediSave Account balance.

MediSave Balance*	Maximum withdrawal Amount Each Month
$20,000 and above	$200

$15,000 and above	$150
$10,000 and above	$100
$5,000 and above	$50
Below $5,000	$0

MediSave balance at point of monthly withdrawal*

- A minimum of $5,000 will need to be set aside in an individual's MediSave Account to ensure sufficient MediSave for other medical expenses such as MediShield Life premiums or hospitalisations. This amount cannot be withdrawn for MediSave Care.
- If there is not enough in your MediSave balance, you can tap on your spouse's MediSave to supplement the withdrawal.
- Whether you are drawing from your own MediSave, or drawing from both yours and your spouse's accounts, the total amount that can be withdrawn each month is $200. For example, if you can only withdraw $150 from your own MediSave, and your spouse's balance is sufficient, you can withdraw another $50 from your spouse's account.

2. Seek assistance from the nursing home your loved one is staying in

If you are applying for MediSave Care to help you offset the cost of the nursing home fees, you can ask the service provider to help. You can nominate the payout to be made directly to the nursing home.

3. Apply via hard copy

Email apply@aic.sg to obtain a copy of the application form or visit any AIC Link.

We seek your understanding that hardcopy applications take a longer time to process.

After you submit your application, we may take up to four weeks to process it. You will be informed about the outcome in writing via mail.

If approved, the payout will be credited to the nominated bank account as long as your loved one meets the eligibility criteria to receive payouts. This may include payouts from the month the application was submitted. The payouts will be reflected as "MediSave Care" in your bank statement.

In the event of any conflict, inconsistency or domestic dispute regarding the nominated bank account, the payouts may be suspended or ceased.

If you have submitted a new application to apply for new schemes or update your existing schemes with AIC, we may update your nominated bank account to the latest bank account details provided in your submission.

FAQs

— Collapse all

1. How do I know if my loved one meets the severe disability criteria?

He/ she will need to see an MOH-accredited severe disability assessor who will determine their disability level.

There is an assessment fee you will need to pay first, which will be reimbursed if your loved one is assessed to be severely disabled.

If he/ she is found to have mild or moderate disability instead, there are other financial assistance schemes that you can turn to for help, like the Home Caregiving Grant or MDW Levy Concession. Please find out more about the other financial assistance schemes here.

2. Tell me more about the cost of the disability assessment.

The cost of the assessment ranges from $100 (if you visit the assessor's clinic) to $250 (if the assessor needs to do a home visit).

You will need to pay the assessment fee first to the assessor. The amount will be reimbursed if your loved one is assessed to be severely disabled.

The assessment must be done by a MOH-accredited severe disability assessor.

3. How can I arrange for my loved one to undergo the severe disability assessment?

You will need to contact an MOH-accredited severe disability assessor to book an appointment and bring along any relevant supporting documents (eg medical records).

4. Can I see my own doctor or therapist to assess if my loved one can qualify for MediSave Care?

Your loved one's regular doctor or therapist may not have been trained by MOH to carry out the SDA. That is why he/ she needs to be assessed by an MOH-accredited severe disability assessor.

Please check if your doctor or therapist is on the approved list of assessors. If they are not, please make an appointment with another assessor from the list.

5. What do I need to know if I am applying on behalf of my loved one who lacks mental capacity?

You can apply on behalf of your loved one as long as:

- You are the appointed Donee (appointed under the Lasting Power of Attorney) or Deputy (appointed under the Mental Capacity Act) authorised to make decisions on his/ her property and affairs.
- If your loved one does not have a Donee or Deputy, you can apply on his/ her behalf if you are an immediate family member (parent, spouse or child). Otherwise, you can only apply on his/ her behalf if the immediate family members are unable to do this (eg deceased, lack mental capacity or other issues). For successful applications without a donee/deputy, the caregiver or another family member has 12 months to obtain a court order appointing him/her as a deputy, failing which the payouts will be suspended. Do visit the Singapore Courts website to find out how to apply for a deputyship.
- You may need the following documents:
 - Recent medical report stating that he/ she lacks mental capacity
 - OR
 - Doctor's certification that he/ she lacks mental capacity
 - If the care recipient is also going for a disability assessment, you must ask if the doctor can do a mental capacity assessment \(using this form\) at the same time.

- The doctor's certification is valid for six months, unless stated as permanent.

OR

Court order of deputy appointment

- Copy of bank book or statement if the bank account nominated to receive the grant belongs to a deputy or trustee.

6. Would a loved one with dementia or other cognitive challenges (eg difficulties in remembering things or making decisions) automatically qualify for MediSave Care?

No, as such conditions affect people's ability to carry out the six activities of daily living at different levels.

In order to qualify for MediSave Care, your loved one still needs to undergo a disability assessment by a MOH-accredited severe disability assessor. The assessor will consider the impact of your loved one's cognitive challenges as part of the assessment.

7. Is there a periodic re-assessment? How often would it be? Can this be waived?

This may sometimes be required to confirm if your loved one still meets the qualifying criteria. You will be informed by mail if this is needed. The re-assessment fees are waived regardless of the outcome.

If your loved one has been assessed as permanently severely disabled, he/ she will not need future re-assessments, unless new information suggests that his/ her condition has improved.

8. If the MediSave Care payout stopped because my loved one got better, can we apply again if he/ she becomes severely disabled later?

Yes, you can reapply and receive MediSave payouts again if your loved one is assessed to meet all the eligibility criteria.

9. How can we change details of the care recipient, bank account/ payee or opt out of the scheme?

To change scheme details

Log in with Singpass on eFASS. Go to “Manage My Schemes” > “Change in Scheme Details.”

If you are updating the details for someone who lacks mental capacity for the first time, please read here.

To change the payee to a nursing home that the care recipient is living at 11. I am residing overseas and unable to visit an MOH-accredited severe disability assessor in Singapore. Can I see my overseas doctor for the required assessment?
